

Well I knew at the beginning of the season that we'd have a good team but I didn't know for sure how good the other teams in the league would be. I thought Lakers, Caro, + Bad Axe would probably be our toughest games. So after we beat Lakers 9-0, Caro 12-0, + Bad Axe 29-0 I knew we'd go all the way.

~~It's~~ This.

Our team this year was smaller than last year's team but but we were much quicker this year especially defensively. Our defensive team this year was much quicker than last year's.

This year we ~~had~~ had a balanced offensive attack. Last year all the teams we played knew that we ran Gary Weiss most of the time and that we didn't pass hardly at all. But this year we had a balanced attack we could run ~~and~~ and pass and this kept the opposing team a little off balance.

This year we had more depth than last year. Last year most of the guys on offense played on defense too. But this year we almost had a separate defensive and a separate offense team except for about 3 or 4 guys who went both ways and I think a guy can do a better job if he can concentrate on just offense or just defense.

I think maybe the biggest difference this year was that this year it was more of a team effort than last year. Last year I think most of the guys relied on Gary Weiss too much. But this year we knew we didn't have any Gary Weiss on our team and we knew that in order to win every guy on the team had to give 100% and do his job at all time.

I'd have to say beating Bad Axe 29-0 gave me the most satisfaction. Because Bad Axe was the only team to beat us last year and when they beat us they really rubbed it in. They swore at us and called ~~us~~ us all kinds of names they even had the nerve to call Gary Weiss a fat pig. And those of us who were on the team last year remembered what Bad Axe did and we really wanted to win that one bad. And this year they tried the same stuff, during the game they were swearing at us and calling us names and I really felt good after that game because beating Bad Axe was something I had been looking forward to ever since last year's game.

This was the program where Robert "Bob" Warnick (whose dry humor is legendary) gave the following answer to the following question from Marv.

Marv: "To what do you attribute the team's success?"

Bob: "German superiority."

Marv immediately went into damage-control mode and said something like "You mean good German food like sauerkraut and bratwurst, right." Bob obligingly agreed. (It was interesting to note that, at this point in the program, WSAM experienced a flurry of calls requesting that James Brown's song "I'm Black, and I'm Proud" be played.)
